PROFILY AUTORŮ / AUTHORS' PROFILES

Lucia Dančišinová
je vedúca katedry a odborná asistentka na Katedre interkultúrnej komunikácie Fakulty manažmentu, ekonomiky a obchodu Prešovskej univerzity v Prešove. Medzi aktuálne témy jej výskumu patria interkultúrna komunikácia v kontexte odbornej angličtiny, interdiskurzivita, kultúrna inteligencia a vybrané aspekty výučby angličtiny pre špecifické účely.

Martina Gaisch
is a teacher of English, intercultural competence and diversity management at the University of Applied Sciences Upper Austria, Austria. She completed her doctoral studies of philosophy at the University of Vienna. As an applied linguist and academic head of diversity management, she is currently working at the faculty of informatics, communications, and media in Hagenberg. Her main research areas are at the interface of educational sociology, higher education research and sociolinguistics.

Nora Melnikova
absolvovala magisterské studium indologie a učitelství češtiny jako cizího jazyka na FF UK a doktorské studium religionistiky na FF MU. Kromě jiného pracovala na lektorátu češtiny v Dillí a na Ústavu Jižní a Centrální Asie FF UK. V současné době vyučuje hindský jazyk a literaturu na Ústavu Jižní a Jihovýchodní Asie na Kalifornské univerzitě v Berkeley.

Boluwaji Oshodi
teaches Linguistics & Languages at Adekunle Ajasin University, Akungba-Akoko, Nigeria. He has a PhD in Linguistics from University Malaysia Sarawak, Kota Samarahan, Malaysia. His research interests include general linguistics, sociolinguistics and applied psycholinguistics (language acquisition).

Dagmar Sieglová
works as an assistant professor at ŠKODA AUTO University in Mladá Boleslav, Czech Republic. She teaches business English, intercultural competence, and intercultural marketing. She completed her graduate degree in intercultural communication at the Graduate School of Education at the University of Pennsylvania, US and her doctoral degree in applied linguistics at Charles University in Prague, Czech Republic. She provides training to teachers, professionals, and administration in teaching methodologies, autonomous language learning, and diversity management.